The weekend of February 12-14, 2010, was set apart as three days of prayer and fasting. The government officials announced a national three days of prayer and fasting to seek God's presence for the country. The Haitian President, René Prével, declared to extend the prayer for two more days. It is believed that God would turn His eyes back to the country, hear their prayers, forgive their sins and heal the land. Haiti's religious leaders for the first time in Haiti's history came together and asked God to have mercy for their country.

Jean Florvilus and Alvie Bello went to Haiti to minister to the earthquake survival in Haiti. The goal of this mission trip was to set plans for the mission trip this summer and to buy food for the feeding program. Since the Haitian International airport was closed, Jean and Alvie had to fly from the U.S. to a small airport in Cap-Haitien, then drove 200 miles to Bombardopolis. "It was the longest and the most tiring trip ever, but I have to do it out of love," says Jean, who traveled from Berrien Springs, MI. It was a sacrifice of love that both Jean and Alvie made to bring hope and comfort to the children in Bombardopolis, Haiti.
